Islam, the second biggest religion on Earth—Muslims say that Islam is a peaceful and tolerant religion; but the evidence speaks to the contrary, that Islam is a violent, full of hatred, and intolerant religion. Which is the real face of Islam? What is, actually, Islam?

It is an accurate and historical portrayal of the prophet Muhammad. The facts in the movie are taken from the Quran, the Hadiths, and Islamic history. It will answer the question, was Muhammad an inspired prophet of God who gave us a new revelation, a new religion, or was he a madman? Was he a perverted madman driven by his own demons, thus producing a religion of violence and tyranny? I believe that as you watch the film, these two very important questions will be answered. Is Islam a religion of peace, or is Islam a religion of violence and oppression? Thank you.

THE LIFE OF MUHAMMAD FROM A DIFFERENT POINT OF VIEW

Chapter 1

THE SITUATION OF THE ARAB WORLD

It was the year 570 in the urban city of Mecca during the time of Christianity and Judaism. The Arab world was going well without many conflicts. There were Bedouins, nomad pastors, organized by tribes. There were also farmers who lived in the north, or (in the airiest, more fertile and dense in the south.

During this time, the majority of the people followed polytheist religions, although a few of the tribes followed Judaism, Christianity, or Zoroastrianism. The city of Mecca was a religious center for some of the northern Arab polytheists, since it already had the second Well of Zamzam, and a small temple, the Kaaba.

Chapter 2

MUHAMMED'S CHILDHOOD AND YOUTH

On the 12th of Rabi \(Rabi al-Awwal\), that is to say, on the 29th of April a child was born. Muhammad. In the family of Aminah, the leader of Abdullah. She was a poor woman without any type of economic means or fixed income. Abdullah died shortly before the birth of Muhammad. Aminah, for being very poor, sought help, and found refuge with Abdul-Muttalib, the grandfather of Muhammad, who was a generous man, although he had gone through some economic difficulties too. This situation was very difficult for the mother and her son. Aminah couldn't feed her son, except for just a few weeks, and had to look for a Bedouin wet nurse, by the name of Halimah bint Abi Dhuayb who was very poor and lived in the valley of Bani Saad \(near Taif\) \(??\). Halimah took care of, and loved Muhammad. She nursed him, tried to give him good food, and played with the poor child, who had lost his father, and was separated from his mother.

She tried to keep him happy every way that she could, but because she was poor, she couldn't give him everything what [that] he wanted. When he turned 5 years old, Aminah, the mother of Muhammad, came back, longing for him. Halimah, although sad, understood the feelings of Aminah, and gave the child back to his mother. A short time later, Aminah got sick and died, leaving Muhammad an orphan at 6 years of age.

His grandfather, Abdul-Muttalib, stayed with him, but when Muhammad turned 8 years old, his grandfather also died, once again leaving him all alone. His uncle, Abu Talib, took him in to live with him. He was also very poor, and had a very large family. Muhammad, in order to help sustain the family, had to work as a shepherd, a clerk in the store, collector, and helping caravans.

Islam still didn't exist, and it was like a time for Christianity, Judaism, and Hinduism. The family of Muhammad followed a religion that wasn't any of the ones mentioned previously; it was a polytheistic religion. They worshipped several gods, like the god of water, the god of the sun, or, the god of fire. Which is to say, Muhammad followed the religion that was given to him by his family, but in any case, it was not Islam, because Islam didn't yet exist.

Normally, at 8 years of age, most children are having fun playing, and don't even have to worry about problems or difficulties of any kind. However, Muhammad, as a poor child, had to work hard and face many difficulties. Growing up in this kind of situation brought him great sadness, feelings of loneliness, and lack of self-esteem. When he used to see other children of his age, he felt very sorry and longed for his parents. He thought and wished that he too could have a father who would play with him, take him for a walk, and buy him toys. Oh, how he wished he had a mother to love him, care for him, give him hugs and kisses, and to take care of him when he was sick, to feed him, and cry for him when he's hurt.

The poor child would just go to the corner to cry because there wasn't anyone to whom he could express his feelings.

It is doubtful that anyone can take care about [of], love, or understand us like our own parents. Although he lived with his uncle, he didn't have many freedoms, and was constantly mistreated. His aunt treated him very badly. She frequently hit him, and when it came time to eat, she treated him in a very derogatory manner saying, "Besides the fact that I have such a big family, I also have to feed this trash?" Muhammad listened in silence, and endured everything without understanding why he was to blame, why he had to face such a cruel situation. In his heart, all (?? A cannon of vengeance..) of vengeance, anger and resentment began to erupt toward the situation against the world, and especially against women because of the abuse he had received from his aunt.

This situation, in the majority of cases, causes a child to be distracted and have low self-esteem. Muhammad realized that he was an orphan without a future, and the world revolved around money and power. But, for the moment, he had no other option, but to continue living with his uncle's family. No one is born a criminal, neither does anyone want to live like one. Delinquency, in the majority of the cases, is a consequence filled with a life of difficulties and deficiencies.

This poor child was raised in this situation, little by little, causing him to think like a criminal. At 20 years old he left his uncle's family, since he had already made many friends. So, he left to live life on his own. He felt prepared to begin his new life, and to become successful as he had many times dreamed. He always said to his friends, "One day I'll be king, and I'll rule the whole world. Everyone will respect me, whether because they love me, or because they fear me. It really doesn't matter."

Besides the fact that he doesn't have a single penny in his pocket, his anger kept him full of energy, and pushed him with an unstoppable force. He didn't want to continue his life as just a worker. He wanted to be rich and powerful. But, how? What do you have to do to be rich and powerful? Muhammad didn't have any money to invest into a business, nor family that could support him financially so that he could bear his standard of living. The dream of becoming rich and powerful without any money in his pocket, and without a roof over his head, it was almost impossible for it to become true.

After sometime passed, Muhammad found a group of young people who were almost in the same situation like him. They accepted him as their leader and administrator. They began to plan ways to become successful. Muhammad's strategy was very clear: success, power, and money, at whatever price, and it didn't matter what had to be done to obtain this objective. They studied and investigated all of the options. They realized that Jews and Christians who were very rich and powerful in politics, religion, and society could rule the world. They should be robbed, attacked, and taken over their money.

Having money in your pocket, power would come by itself. But how to do that? To go into their houses and rob them wouldn't be easy, because there were many of them, and they would respond in the same violent way. So he decided to rob them when he could catch them alone in the street, the desert, or their stores, covering their faces with a veil (the robbers). In the next 5 years, Muhammad's group became very violent, attacking and robbing Jews and Christians by assault(ing) them, beat(ing) them, and if they resisted, they would even kill them.

Words like sympathy, love, and friendship didn't exist in the dictionary of Muhammad's life. For him, everything was a question of how he could obtain it all. They would get them in the pathways and in the streets of the towns, except for in Mecca, where they didn't usually act. Everything was a question of having some to spout out over the movements of Christians and Jews, and waiting for the rest to act.

Muhammad was happy with his success during these 5 years, but he wasn't completely satisfied because he hadn't yet reached the point where he wanted to be. Almost everything went towards the cost of maintaining the group. There wasn't much left over for him. He couldn't assault the people everyday; that is why he also had to work in a company in Mecca so that no one would suspect him about his activities. He was worried for his future, and began to think about how to develop a new strategy in order to climb the ladder higher in his profession of robbing the rich people in order to become more powerful.

Chapter 3

MUHAMMED'S FIRST MARRIAGE (17:36)

Why are you continuing to search for the best way to become even more rich and raise his standard of living? At the age of 25, Muhammad met Khadijah (Khadijah bint Khuwaylid), his boss at the job he had in Mecca. A Jewish Merchant and wealthy widow who was 40 years old, 15 years younger than him. This was just the opportunity that he needed. To Muhammad, neither age nor love mattered when it came to climbing the ladder of success, he just wanted to forget about it all. For him, love and relationships were not as important as power and money. All of the difficulties and problems that he faced as a child had made him very cold and cruel. So that his how Muhammad began his courtship with this woman.

His youth, and longing for Khadijah to make him feel loved again made it an easy task. Muhammad married for the first time to a 40 year old merchant lady. Muhammad's objective in the marriage was to have a life filled with luxury and fun, and taking advantage of Khadijah's wealth, creating a firm base for his plan to achieve success. It was the perfect plan to continue raising his standard of living, but he didn't leave his group; that continued to be an important concern in his life. Once he married Khadijah, and had a lot of money, Muhammad changed his lifestyle. Now he could travel wherever he wanted, manipulate influences, and continue to expand his group of criminals. Everything that was not accessible to him before, he now had in the palm of his hands.

Muhammad continued his progress, creating new plans for his future. Where he had finally arrived wasn't even near the end. Muhammad wanted to fly to the heavens, and to rule the whole world, so he made his group of delinquents even larger, including many young people who came on their own accord to ask for a job. Being that, Muhammad was a very famous mafia man, and contracted them to steal and kill.

They began to exercise violence unnecessarily in their conduct without feeling any fear. The Christians and Jews feared them. They asked Muhammad to stop with his crimes, but he didn't listen to anyone. He was going very well, just like he wanted. To see everyone fear him made him more happy each time, and gave him confidence. Muhammad spread his mission to the rest of the world, to all the important cities, and having these groups working for him in all regions. Because of this, it became the greatest mafia movement of that time. Nearing the age of 40, he had great power; thousands of people working for him, stealing from the rich Christians and Jews. All of the poor, delinquent, and uneducated people became part of Muhammad's group. Since it was an easy way to get money and escape their minds away. Now, they didn't just steal, they went a step further. They raped women and killed all of the Jews and Christians who resisted Muhammad's soldiers. They took their women as slaves, and tortured and raped them. They were the most horrific mafia group of that time.

All of a sudden, Muhammad realized that the people had more fear than respect for him, and that the thousands of people who stole and raped women at his command were not going to obey him for the rest of their lives. So what would he have to do in order to achieve the final step of controlling the entire world? What would he have to do in order to be respected forever, so that they would do whatever he told them to?

Chapter 4

THE BIRTH OF A FALSE FAITH (22:42)

His group of counselors, like a strategy to continue towards the steps to success, suggested to him that he create a faith, like Judaism and Christianity, which would have millions of followers around the world. They knew that countless pilgrims went to visit the sacred places, and to make lots of money to the Christian and Jewish places of worship. They suggested [to] him that creating a faith would be a good business, and would bring in a lot of money and power. They were already thinking that this new faith could really become a reality, they could legalize all of their criminal activities, and initiate a war in the name of their faith, which would be against all other religions. This would allow them to capture their money, property, and women. Muhammad saw how the Jews and Christians were respected, and were very strong economically, politically, and religiously. The entire world followed them, and they received a lot of money for religious reasons.

For this reason, Muhammad liked the idea of creating his own faith, although it was a false one. Muhammad's dream had always been to govern the world. He saw that it was not very difficult to teach the uneducated and poor people a new faith, and for those who didn't accept his faith, they would be obligated by force or threats, putting to good use his thousands of soldiers, mafia criminals and precessions.

Now, the question was to figure out the steps to obtain this objective of how to create a false faith, and make everyone in the world to follow it. Muhammed planned every detail with his group of counselors. They wanted to create a faith that would give complete power to the followers, and force the people to convert. In this way, power would be granted to kill those who didn't want to believe his faith, with a very clear message of one faith, and one god, placing Muhammad at the ultimate and most praised prophet of God.

First, the followers would have the right to make war against all those who didn't follow him. Muhammad wanted to give complete and legal power to his team of thieves, and assassines to rob and kill all Christians and Jews that they wanted to, and thus, be able to go around the world without any opposition. In the town of Mecca the people still knew him as Khadijah's husband, but outside of Mecca Muhammad was famous for being a violent mafia thief and killer. This, adding the fame of the city as the well-known major religious center, brought him to make the decision of using Mecca as the epicenter of his religious and (principled desolation of his clamorous-??) his self-created upcoming faith.

Although Muhammad really wanted to declare himself as the God of the new faith, he knew that it wouldn't be very easy to convince the people that a man could have converted into God, so from the suggestions of his team, he decided to be a prophet, which would grant him absolute power. They investigated everything he needed to create a faith: a god, a prophet, a religious book, a sacred house of god, and many followers. Amongst many opinions and ideas they choose [chose] some that everyone agreed to be perfect.

They decided to establish an entire system for this new faith, which they would impose on the world.

First: The name of the faith, ISLAM.

Second: The name of the god; they decided that the name of the god of this new faith would be Allah, and the definition of Allah would be the following: Allah is 'One', Allah is 'Eternal'; he was never begotten, nor would he ever be begotten, and there is no one who resembles him. Allah is very benevolent, and loves his creatures more than a mother loves her child. On the other side, they also created that no one is truly worthy of praise except for Allah. He is the only god, so know that there is no god except for Allah.

Third: The prophet of the new faith. They decided to declare that Muhammad would be the ultimate, most honorable, and most important prophet of Allah, and they decided it that [in] this way they could grant Muhammad all power, just as the god himself.

Fourth: The followers thought this new faith would be called Muslims. And according to Islam, they will be the best humans in the world, that the world had been created solely for them, and that only Muslims would reach heaven. In this way, Muhammad gave all rights to Muslims, with the purpose that they could use violence, permit injustice, or whatever they ginned up (??), in the name of this new faith in order to spread itself throughout the whole world, and obtain more power from Muhammad.

Fifth: The religious book that they created would be called the Quran, which would speak of, and demonstrate, the superiority of Muhammad. Through this book they would deceive and convince an entire world, using messages and teachings that were in favor of the purposes of Muhammad, and his gang of criminals. The easiest way that Muhammad found for creating this book was to copy parts of the Bible and the Torah. First, taking the contents of these separate books, Muhammad created his own book, giving it the name "Quran."

Sixth: The sacred home of the new faith. They decided that Mecca would be the House of God, where all of the world would visit, and they would receive many offerings in order to raise up the kingdom of Muhammad.

Seventh: They devised the ways for praying and worshipping. Rituals were established. They made rules for praying 5 times a day, fasting during the month of Ramadan, and an obligated visit to Mecca, at least once in a lifetime.

Eighth: They decided to declare by means of false messages from Allah that through Muhammad, the ultimate, most honorable, and important prophet of Allah, all the world would have to conduct their lives how Muhammad conducted his, and upon doing so, it was called 'Sunnah', and those who adapt this behavior will have a more direct path to glory. Like that, Muhammad pretended to be more and more strong (stronger and stronger), making himself the model to follow for all of his faithful ones.

Ninth: Muhammad decided to design an official and legal side for his followers, where, with an excuse of meaning to pray, they could plan wars and black market activities. They gave the name to this side 'Mosque', which now exist all around the world. Muhammad and his followers planned all the human massacres (??) behind half closed doors of the Mosque, and now the Islamic terrorists of the modern world are following the same steps of Muhammad inside these Mosques in order to destroy the peace of the world.

Tenth: Lastly, it became an obligation of every believer to participate in the Holy War, Jihad, in the name of Allah, the god created by Muhammad. It was a well thought out plan with the purpose that Muhammad and his followers could get everything that they wanted. Muhammad decided to begin the mission in his town Mecca, and take advantage of the name and influence of his wife so that the people would believe his words. Muhammad thought of convincing his wife first about his new faith, and then later his wife would ensure the entire world that what he was saying was the truth.

In the year 610, at 40 years of age, Muhammad began to take action according to his plans. First, he wanted to deceptively convince his wife. He told her that he wanted to share a secret with her. She, who greatly respected him, always listened to every word of Muhammad, paid close attention. Muhammad told her that the Angel Gabriel had visited him, bringing him a word from Allah. He said that Allah had chosen him as a messenger to share the word of Allah to the whole world. Upon hearing that, Muhammad's wife was surprised and thought that it was incredible that a human who up until yesterday, was simply a businessman, all of a sudden, had become a prophet of a god called Allah.

To her, it seemed impossible to believe, and didn't understand why Muhammad had created this fantasy. Before that day, she had never heard of the name of this new god created by Muhammad that was called Allah. She told Muhammad that she didn't want to say anything. Muhammad realized that his wife was not taking his word seriously, so being the very clever, and intelligent person that he was, he began to pray to Allah on his knees, kissing the floor and crying. He did this for several days. Finally, his wife was convinced and began to cry as well. She told Muhammad that she believed him, and that she wanted to do everything possible that she could, so Muhammad said to her, "More than anything else I wanted to convert to Islam and accept the existence of Allah and me as its messenger."

Although she was not 100% sure about Allah, nor his messages, or messenger, she did it for her husband. Afterwards, Muhammad asked her to help convince the people of Mecca that Allah had sent a message to the town through Muhammad. "Allah is the only God, and Muhammad is the prophet of Allah. "

Taking advantage of the influence, status and support of his wife, Muhammad publically introduced the new religion of Islam, and declared himself a prophet, just as in past history, Jesus Christ had declared himself a prophet. Muhammad was copying Christ of wrong intentions of deceiving the entire world. The difference between Jesus Christ and Muhammad is that Jesus Christ truly was the messenger of God, and sacrificed his life for humanity. On the contrary, Muhammad was not a prophet, except that he was doing this to achieve his own personal objectives. When the town of Mecca heard about Islam, Allah as God, and Muhammad as prophet, in the beginning, no one wanted to listen to him or believe him.

It wasn't so easy going out in the street proclaiming to the world the existence of a new faith, a new God, and a new prophet. A faith is not a typical plate of Arabic food that you just prepare in an hour. But Muhammad's wife helped him greatly to take the message to the whole town, and convince the people of it. Also, thousands of people from Muhammad's criminal team converted to Islam, falsely, in public to show the people of the town that there had been a revolution, that Allah had sent his true messenger to this world, and that he had chosen Mecca as his Holy Place.

Muhammad's wife and his team very subtly and bribed the poor and the beggars, giving them money, food, and other primary necessities so that they would accept Islam as (the) true religion, and Muhammad as the prophet. First, Muhammad increased the quantity of people who adopted his false faith. Muhammad began to triumph when he began converting his friends, and those closest to him to Islam. He convinced them, saying that all the messages that he received were words from Allah. In each message of this God, his founding (?) was always mentioned so that the whole world realize how important he was for Allah. To make more people believe, Muhammad had to act as a false prophet that he was, and try to convince to the whole world that he was receiving messages of God, and that angels came from Allah to see him.

He couldn't do it in his house or in the streets because upon doing it falsely in public places, his deception would be discovered, so he selected the place where he hid his money from the robberies, the cave in the Hira mountains in Mecca. Muhammad went there to hide the loot that his team would bring him from other towns, but told the world that he went into the cave to receive words from Allah, to see the angels of Allah, to mediate and pray to Allah. This process continued for several years until Muhammad fabricated many false messages of a God which did not exist, and later mixed those messages with the contents that he had copied from the Bible and the Torah.

All these messages were contained in the book called Quran created by Muhammad to deceive the people of Mecca, the Arab World, and humanity. It was a book that was written with the objective to demonstrate the superiority of Muhammad so that he would be able to complete all of his desires. He began to preach Islam based on some two-faced principles. On one hand, the existence of the one god, and the immorality of the soul which he got from the Bible and the Torah. And on the other hand, violence, war, Jihad, killing, hatred, and discrimination. It became a perfect mix of the two ideologies: one good, and the other bad. So nobody could refute it.

In the beginning, his only followers were his closest family members, later his most intimate friends, afterwards, the town people, and finally he preached publically in the city and the surrounding areas. From Muhammad, it was important to achieve a large community for his false faith, with the purpose of creating a strong base. The town already believed it, his wife and his team promoted it by going door to door, and it's part of our human nature that when we make a lot of noise, and millions of people listen to a message, there will be at least thousands who believe it, and follow it. That's what exactly happened.

Little by little the people began to believe. Everything was going like Muhammad wanted. His strategy was a crime feed. The people under the command of Muhammad continued robbing, raping, and killing innocent people outside of their town, and in his own town he pretended to be the prophet of Allah. Arabs of Mecca were clinging to their polytheism, and others, Christians and Jews revolted against the prophet. The most powerful families of Mecca turned against him. The Christian and Jewish communities of Mecca were provoked and outraged for the impetuous activities of Muhammad. He began to be hindered by the Christian and Jewish communities which knew that Muhammad was a liar, and that there wasn't any Allah, or a prophet of Allah.

Problems began to arise when Muhammad began to insult other religions. The Jews and the Christians didn't just let him come into their communities easily to preach the false messages. That is why Muhammad had to use violence and power from the mafia against those who became obstacles in his way. Finally, for fear of Muhammad, the other communities decided not to confront him to prevent problems within, and his mafia group.

And this allowed Muhammad to practice his new faith wherever he wanted. Although they offered him an agreement so that all religions could exist together in Mecca, for Muhammad, the objective was not to practice a religion, but rather to convert the entire world, so Muhammad rejected any type of agreement. He wanted the complete domination. Muhammad didn't like sharing his power. Although violence was part of Muhammad's strategy, in these moments he wanted to do it more softly with verbal threats than force. But when the moment arose, Muhammad and his team of assassins pulled out their swords against those who didn't want to follow his orders.

Muhammad sent a message to the Christian and Jewish community for them to accept Islam, but this time he was not successful. The Jews and Christians, although they were afraid of Muhammad, rejected it, and told him that they had a God who would save them, and they didn't need a new god, or a false prophet.

Chapter 5

Initiating the Violence

Now, Muhammad was searching for a way to make possible the conversion of Christians and Jews to Islam. With tricks, noise, force, and threats Muhammad added new messages to the Quran and shared them with the whole world. For example, "I have been ordered by Allah to fight against all the unfaithful until they submit to the reality that there is no God except for Allah, and Muhammad is his messenger." Submit and testify that there is no other God except Allah, and Muhammad is his Apostle, or you will be decapitated. In summary, according to the message of Allah, Muhammad transmitted it to the world through the Quran: "I order all Muslims to fight against the unfaithful until they are dead or convert to Islam." (To) permit people of other faiths to live freely and ignore Islam was not an option.

The following years were barbaric and violent. Muhammad fooled the Christians and Jews to convert to Islam or die by the sword. Muhammad and his followers abused their women and seized their properties. Many children were left orphaned, and the young girls lost their boyfriends and fiancés. The barbarism of Muhammad didn't distinguish between youth, elders, and children. Everyone became the victim of the sword of Muhammad. It left women as widows, children as orphans, everyone (??) was mistreated physically and psychologically. Muhammad subjected the Arab children to the same situation that he had suffered from in his childhood, without parents.

Because of Muhammad, a huge part of the population cried for the rest of their lives from deep horror and suffering. Those who didn't want to convert to Islam, and wanted to follow their own religions were obligated to live under the submission under the government of Muhammad, and were forced to pay him quantities of money periodically so that they would be allowed to continue living.

First, the people of other religions were forced to pay a tax to Muhammad called "Jaziya" under Islamic laws. The resounding success of his strategy attracted various mafia groups from other towns and Arab countries. Some groups from the Arab city of Madina invited him to negotiate about how they could join Muhammad's group. This offer was enough attractive (attractive enough) for Muhammad because he needed more manpower, and political alliances with various groups in order to continue the plan of flying his flag throughout the world.

Chapter 6

The Start of the Holy War (Jihad)

Muhammad and his mafia alliances reached an agreement of sharing the power, but only under one condition. According to what? The world will be governed under Muhammad's flag. And then, from Medina a new story was began (begun). The region that was created by Muhammad was at the point of expanding internationally. With many acts of war, violence, as an Islamic knee (jerk) reaction, Muhammad and his followers initiated the offense against passive countries in order to impose Islam on them, using force, violence, and eliminating their enemies. This launched the Holy War against Christian, Jewish, and polytheistic paganism. This war cost countless lives in various communities, cities, countries, and amongst people with different types of faith.

Up to this time, It hadn't been possible to make a true list of all the massacres that Muhammad had committed in his ambition for power. They are countless, but some of the most important wars, and attempts against humanity that Muhammad did, were the following: the War of Badr, the War of Uhud, the War of Ahzab, the War of Nile, the War of Tabouk, the War of Mu'tah. These wars caused the worst human massacres in the history of our humanity. It began with Medina, passing through Mecca, to the entire Arab world, conquering many countries, and making them submit under his flag, and reaching countries of almost the entire world.

So much success and wealth made Muhammad too cruel and shameless. His feet were not on the ground. He was flying in the clouds of his own world, created by lies and violence. The palace of his life was full of happiness, and the luxuries that he constructed over the dead bodies of thousands of innocent victims, and it made him feel like a god that could control the whole world by moving just one finger.

Chapter 7

The Awakening of Lust

From being an orphan to becoming a thief, afterwards, a mafia assassin, later, a false prophet, and now, at the age of 52 years, he had become a sexual robot full of lust. After the hard work of many years of robbing, torturing, and killing so many people, he wanted to make his sexual life happy. Sex and lust were two chapters of his life that he had forgotten about during his struggle to become rich and powerful, but now when he had everything, his sexual desires were awakened, despite the fact that he was 52 years old, and it wouldn't be long before he left this world.

During the wars, they killed Jews and Christians, and Muhammad took the women of these victims captive. He would select the most attractive women for himself, and give the others to his team. These women became Muhammad's slaves. He made them dance. He forced them to give him sexual pleasure by threatening them with the sword, and after he had used them, he would throw them out into the street. Women had become a toy for Muhammad. He didn't value or respect them. For him, women were to be used, and then thrown out, that is what he taught all of the men that followed him.

For that reason, even today, in the Islamic world women don't have the same rights or respect as men. Thanks to Muhammad, during the Islamic world, women are subjected to discrimination, and tortured by men. Muhammad liked to play with women for a little while, and then he would treat them like slaves. With those whom he liked to spend a lot of time with, he would threaten to kill them if they didn't agree to marry him.

In the following years, he married several times, divorcing the ones he was no longer interested in so that he could marry others. The Quran in history tells us that Muhammad was married 11 times, but according to the signs and indications, Muhammad was married many more times. Even on some occasions, he had been married several times within a week or even a month. Some people even dare to question him about his sexual and marital activities, but there's a saying: "Every dog has its day", which means that there is a moment in life when everything goes very well. This saying can be perfectly applied to Muhammad. He knew how to justify his horrible actions and illegal activities. Islam served as a shield for him. Each time that he married another woman, he would say that it was Allah's wish, and that Allah had commanded him to marry that woman. When he mentioned the name of Allah, no one dared to question him. On top of that, he added another false message in the Quran: "Man can be married to 4 women at a time." This was another way to legalize his sexual activities. Besides his first wife Khadijah (bint Khuwaylid), in the following years Muhammad married the following women:

2. Sawda Bint Zam'a
3. Aisha \(Bint Abi Bakr\) (She was the third and most questionable wife of Muhammad, the daughter of his best friend Abu Bakr, a 6 year old minor girl who was engaged to a young fellow Jubayr ibn Mut'im, but like always, Muhammad's sexual desires were awoken, and he devised a trick to get this girl, breaking off the commitment that had been made between these two young people. Muhammad was 52 years old when he married this minor girl.)
4. Hafza Bint Umar
5. Umm Salama Hind
6. Zaynab bint Khuzayma (She was a Jew, whose father, husband, and uncle were all assassinated by Muhammad's Islamic army.)
7. Zainab bint Jahsh (She was the wife of Muhammad's adopted son. In other words, his daughter-in-law. Muhammad used tricks by inventing a false message from Allah, and forcing his son to divorce his wife so that he could marry her himself.)
8. Juwayriyya bint al-Harith
9. Safiyya \(bint Huyayy\) (She was a 17 year old Jewish girl. Muhammad killed her father, her husband Kenana \(ibn al-Rabi\), and her brother, all in the same day, and raped her that very night.
10. Barra bint al-Harith (alias "Maimuna")
11. Ramla bint Abi Sufyan (a.k.a. Umm Habiba)

Muhammad had sexual relations with almost whoever he wanted, thanks to a supposed interest that Allah had in his sexual life, who would give him orders to marry one, and then another. Muhammad sexually exploited young girls, had many women as slaves, and countless wives. Muhammad never forgot to justify his dark sexual activities, using [the] Quran as a shield, saying that all of his marriages were for the good of humanity, and was helping with those; but in reality, it was Muhammad himself who used to kill the husbands of those women, and later raping them, and forcing them to marry him.

Chapter 8

The Discrimination of Women

Muhammad was never able to pacify his hatred, and anger in his heart against women. To him, it seemed as all women were bad and cruel like his aunt, and because of that, he wanted to be a grievant from all of them. He used to find the face of his aunt in the face of every woman, and that is why, through all of his writings and commands, he sentenced women to a very difficult life. Through his religious others, discrimination against women is expressed in several ways, like the following:

1. Muslim men can be married to 4 women at the same time, but women do not have the right to protest, or marry more than one man at a time.

2. Muhammad made it so easy for men to destroy the life of their women. For example, a Muslim man, at any moment, without any warning, preparation, or legal process, can divorce his wife within some seconds, just by repeating the word talāq three times. It means "divorce." But a woman doesn't have it that easy if she wants to divorce her husband. First of all, Islamic society doesn't allow her to do so, and if she still wants her freedom by being a rebel, she will have to go through a long and painful process. But later, after being divorced, she will not have the same respect in society as before.
3. Every religion allows men and women to pray together to God under the same roof, but in this case also, Muhammad discriminated against women. They are not allowed to pray in the Mosques together with the men. This is because, according to Muhammad, women are second-class human beings, and are not that close to Allah, like the men are. That's the reason that women have to pray separately from the men, the majority of them, in their homes.
4. Muhammad did not give permission to women to enter the graveyard. Despite the fact, that if a woman died, she could be buried there, however, it was always the man who carried her body to the holy field for burial.
5. Women could not get close, speak to, or have a friendship with men who are not close family but on the other hand, men have no such restriction.
6. Women always have to be covered. They were obligated to cover the faces, and entire bodies.
7. Muhammad did not believe that women were intelligent, or that their work had any value. It is for that reason that in Islamic laws, which Muhammad invented, the testimony of a woman is not valid. For example, if a woman has been raped, and she reports it to the police, that report cannot be processed until at least one man testifies to her word.

By doing all these things, Muhammad left women sentenced to suffer forever. That is why we cannot change or better the situation for them—because women only have their future and destiny decided by Muhammad via the Quran, and the Quran is a book which doesn't allow modifications, or changes in it.

Chapter 9

Condemning the Non-Believers

After winning the wars, Muhammad and his team used to capture the buildings of the cities, and converted them into Mosques, and in them, they built tall minarets that according to Muhammad, were signs of victory for Islam. The Mosques were not a place to pray. They were huge offices of his conquest over the world, in which the minarets demonstrated his power.

Muhammad invented his own Islamic flag with the image of a sword. This symbol means that all have to fear the sword and the power of Muhammad. With this sword, Muhammad assassinated and threatened the world in order for them to submit to Islam. This image of the sword still exists on the National Flag of Saudi Arabia where Muhammad was born, where the lie about Islam and his war against humanity was started from.

Muhammad declared that whoever wasn't a Muslim couldn't enter into the Kaaba, which is called the home of Allah. The message of Muhammad was very clear: All those who are not Muslims are enemies of Muhammad and his followers. Through the Quran, which is a message of Muhammad, he left a very clear message to all the Muslims that they should not have any friendship or any relationship with the kafirs, people who are not Muslims. Muhammad never allowed anyone to oppose him. This meant losing your life. Several people from his group that went against him were brutally assassinated by Muhammad. And until today, Muslims continue with the same ideology. According to them, whoever decides to abandon, oppose, or criticize Islam will be assassinated.

Chapter 10

The Death of the "Great Prophet"

After having fulfilled all of his objectives of being rich, powerful, and respectable, in the year of 632, at the age of 62, Muhammad died; but before leaving this world, he left so much radicalism and violence in the heart of Muslims that we can never erase or change it. Although Muhammad died, His followers, political alliances, and team of criminals, continued to commit all of the injustices, torchers, and massacres that he had taught them. And it wasn't because of their faith in Islam, or out of respect for Muhammad; it was because they were not capable of living without the luxury and power coming from the lie of the faith of Islam, that Muhammad had created. From then on, this false faith has extended throughout the world, and still continues with its ideology of governing the world at whatever price, and whatever way.

Chapter 11

The Forgotten Past and the New Generations

The people who were converted to Islam by force continued the Islamic trap because of fear of Muhammad. And so from generation to generation time past. Things of the past were forgotten, and the new generation didn't realize that they were following a religion that was erected from the graves of many innocent men, and that they respected a religion that was surrounded by a sea of tears from countless women. They continued to respect Muhammad as the messenger of Allah, and Islam as the religion that their past generations had given to them. They never came to realize the history of the reality of how Muhammad killed and brutally tortured people in order to convert them to a religion that didn't even exist. And since that time, until now, millions of innocent Muslims follow the violent education, and injustice of Islam that Muhammad imposed on them. These Muslims of blind faith do not know that they are the descendents of generations of people who were forced to convert to Islam, and to follow a religion which is the creation of a selfish mafia man who created this Islamic trap in order to gain power and luxury.

Chapter 12

The Message from the Author

We understand perfectly that Muhammad lived through a terrible situation in his childhood and youth, without parents, without love, and without means for a better life, which were effects which caused him to become a criminal, and a very selfish person who did everything that he could to fulfill his own interests. Anyone of us in his position would have ended up down the same path. Everyone in the world likes money and power, but now, it is the moment to recognize him, to know his lies, to recognize his character, and the fantasy of Islam which he created. Muhammad himself couldn't have imagined that a false faith invented by him in order to rule around the world would have grown so much, and would have been followed by millions of people who admire and respect his lies with so much emotion and sincerity.

What has happened to the millions of people who can't distinguish between the truth and a lie? Why can't they see that Muhammad was only a human being, like us, who committed all of these crimes because of his human nature? Desiring power and wealth. I know that I haven't got physical evidence(s) to prove that Muhammad wasn't a prophet, but rather a mobster. But Muslims can't demonstrate either the truthfulness of Muhammad's secret and spiritual character. Very simply, I just want to say, how can a man be a prophet who used to rape women, abuse young children, killed innocent people in the name of a faith, ruined the future of families, and lead his followers to barbarism. If he was still alive, I'm sure that no law, no country, or culture would let him remain free, and that he would be punished for all the crimes he committed against humanity. The objective of this biography is not to declare Muhammad a criminal, or to convince the world to leave the faith that he created. I only want to show the other side of reality regarding the dark and dirty life of Muhammad, which I consider to be the truth. Now you are the one who has to decide if you will still respect him as a holy prophet, or will stop following his violent teachings for the good future of our world. I would ask all Muslims to please leave the way of Jihad, which Muhammad taught them, and that they should embrace the way of love and humanity. That will be the true salvation for them, and peace for this world. Thank you very much.
